Organized? Sure. Occupying? So-so.

- About 400 to 500 people showed up Thursday and spent the day holding signs that have become synonymous with Occupy Wall Street
- About 17 'working groups' tasked with keeping the group organized

▶ An exchange between a man in a tie and a man in a hooded sweatshirt was about as testy as it got.

Occupy Philly members gathered at City Hall Thursday morning to begin their sleep-in, though the crowd was noticeably smaller than the audience at its planning meeting Tuesday.

Attendees ranged from college students to Vietnam veterans. As with Occupy movements in other cities, their goals varied. But they shared one thing in common: an intense feeling of frustration and alienation.

"Me and my family have always been f—ked over," Samantha Pinto, 19, of South Philadelphia, said. "But now people whose lives were comfortable are getting f—ked over, too. It's a good opportunity for solidarity."

The action was surprisingly organized, with participants divided into working groups and stations for security, medics and even childcare.

In order to help clarify their demands, attendees were encouraged to write their reasons for participating on a series of posters that will be posted along the building.

They also planned to erect a people's microphone so that anyone who wanted to speak could discuss their motivations and concerns.

"They're exercising their American rights," said mayoral spokesman, Mark McDonald, who attended portions of the protest Thursday. "This ain't Syria. It's a place where you can just be."

At noon, organizers from more than 17 "working groups" — including legal, financial and direct action committees — gave reports on where they were stationed and how volunteers could help.

Thursday afternoon brought such discussions as whether to apply for proper permits to erect tents to sleep in through the night.

"The city wants to work with you," local ACLU attorney Mary Catherine Roper told the group. "You guys need to discuss if you will cooperate with the city's request."

Odd couple: Protesters and city

Organizers stressed nonviolence and lawfulness, so far complying with the promises they made to city officials Wednesday.

"Please do not block traffic," a woman shouted. "The mayor and police have been very welcoming – let's be welcoming back."

They also emphasized respect for the space, asking protesters not to destroy or deface property or litter and to respect the homeless and police.

"A spokesman for the group said they didn't want to break any laws or disrupt the city or city government, and there's every evidence, at least right now, that they're just here to express their views," McDonald said.

Donations welcome!

Despite many dismissing the protest, it has earned a great deal of support. Some examples:

- One union donated office space for lawyers from the National Lawyer's Guild and the ACLU to offer pro bono advice and defense.
- A deliveryman from Paulie's Pizza on 11th Street was circulating menus to the crowd. "We'll deliver here, just tell me what tree you're at," he said.
- Council 47, city white-collar union, is donating coffee, and the stagehands union will supply a professional sound system.
- Police Commissioner Charles Ramsey showed up to take the lead in a 4 p.m. march that shut down the street surrounding City Hall.

Gamble takes lead on Million Man weekend

Philadelphia was the nation's first capital and home of the Declaration of Independence. Now it and could be the site of a revitalization of the black community in America, according to organizers of the 16th anniversary of the Million Man March being held in the city this weekend.

Organizers said Philadelphia was chosen as this year's backdrop because it sent approximately 200,000 black men — the most of any city — to the 1995 March in Washington, D.C. The weekend's events begin Friday with a Day of Atonement and conclude Sunday with an address by the Nation of Islam's Minister Louis Farrakhan at the Pennsylvania Convention Center.

Charity

Attendees at Sunday's main event are asked to bring at least one nonperishable food item with them. The food will be distributed to needy families in the region, organizers said.

The focus this year is on addressing hunger, street violence and political accountability.

"Something really big is going to come from Philadelphia this weekend, and I believe that it will spread throughout this whole country," said Minister Ismael Farrakhan, the Nation of Islam's second-in-command. "That's what we're missing: brotherly love. We couldn't have chosen a better city at this time."

Music mogul and developer Kenny Gamble, who's part of the local organizing committee, said that while black people have made tremendous progress — including the election of Barack Obama — they still face challenges in education and economic development.

"This 16th anniversary is maintenance," Gamble said. "We're reminding people of the commitments that have to be made. We're reaching out to the young ones who weren't born yet so they can experience the vibration that's going to be felt."

Nutter vetoes tax break for garages

CITY HALL. Mayor Michael Nutter vetoed a bill passed by City Council Sept. 15 that would incrementally reduce parking tax rates over three years beginning in 2014.

"This is the wrong time to adopt new tax breaks, particularly for a single industry," Mayor Michael Nutter said in a letter to Council.

"Apparently, the mayor has learned to lobby over the last couple of days, so I will not be asking my colleagues to vote to override today," sponsor Councilman Jim Kenney said, adding that the bill originally passed by a 12-5 vote, but mysteriously appeared to have more opponents Thursday.

Kenney said he intends to reintroduce the bill in January 2012. METRO/AW

Satellite bill falls from favor

Proposal to force satellite dishes from front of city homes withdrawn

Councilman Darrell Clarke withdrew his satellite bill from City Council Thursday, though that did not stop the community from weighing in.

"Are you going to create a department that sends people to say, 'Let's make sure he's got the right kind of satellite out there,' like the PPA?" asked Earl Lively during public testimony.

The bill mandates that homeowners and tenants must install satellite dishes somewhere other than the front of their homes or attempt to camouflage them.

"The plan affects the consumer, not the provider. I think it needs to be thought out more."
EARL LIVELY

"I introduced it because I thought satellites were placed on rowhouse communities without a thought for aesthetics or safety," Clarke said, adding that a lot of misinformation surrounding the bill had been circulated since its inception.

The bill drew the ire of the Satellite Broadcasting and Communications Association when it was discussed at the last City Council session. The group, which represents Dish Networks and DirecTV, said that the legislation was illegal under FCC regulations. ALEX WIGGLESWORTH

RICARD LARMA/METRO

▶ "The notion ... you have to place it on the facade is some thing that has been promoted by the industry and, frankly, is ridiculous," Clarke said. "The last I checked, most satellites are in the sky."

Dems tweak rich tax

WASHINGTON. At the request of the White House, Senate Democrats have pushed back the effective date of their proposed tax increase on millionaires until after next year's elections, a party aide said yesterday.

In doing so, Democrats also increased the size of their proposed surcharge on the income of millionaires to 5.6 percent from 5 percent, the aide said. As revised, it would kick in on January 1, 2013, rather than January 1, 2012. REUTERS

WASHINGTON. New claims for unemployment benefits rose modestly last week, but hovered near levels normally associated with improving labor market conditions, a hopeful sign for the struggling economy.

TOM FOREMAN
POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

PRESIDENTIAL DOG DAYS

President Obama says he is the underdog in the 2012 race for the White House.

If you buy that, I suppose you also believe Springsteen is just a struggling young rocker from Jersey, Congress is hard at work and I'm this year's Nebraska Corn Queen. Come on. No sitting president, Democratic or Republican, is ever the underdog in a race for re-election. He may be challenged, troubled, befuddled, on the ropes or in a fix, but I repeat: He is never the underdog.

Consider these very un-underdogish facts: In 2008, Barack Obama beat the beagles out of John McCain in terms of fundraising, raking in and spending so much green that he was able to turn formerly critical red states like Indiana and North Carolina blue. This time around, he and the Democratic Party are once again racing into the cash dash like greyhounds, and breaking records along the way. Any real underdog would be sitting at a Sonic Drive-In right now, eating Tater Tots with his campaign director wondering if they had enough gas in the Prius to reach Ames.

CNN=POLITICS

Quoted

"Incumbents tend to win. ... The odds have said once a person settles into the Oval Office, he is there to stay for two terms."

This president, like any other, enjoys more free coverage on the Internet, radio, TV, in magazines and newspapers than any contender can ever hope for, no matter how much money he's made from his pizza empire. And Barack Obama, like his predecessors, is shrewd about conducting the public's business in a way that steals the limelight from his foes during their big campaign moments.

And there is this: Incumbents tend to win. Especially since 1900, the odds have said once a person settles into the Oval Office he is there to stay for two terms. Re-election is the rule; being kicked out is the exception.

To his credit, President Obama did not raise this notion of being the underdog on his own. It was tossed his way like a tennis ball for a golden retriever. He simply dashed out to snatch it up. But the political facts say presidents just can't wear that collar; no more than a Doberman can claim to be a Chihuahua. For all his problems in the polls, Barack Obama remains the single most potent political player in America today — and he's undeniably the big dog in this fight.

ESPN drops Williams Jr. over Obama comment

▶ Hank Williams Jr.

ESPN said it has permanently removed Hank Williams Jr.'s opening song to its "Monday Night Football" telecasts three days after the country singer compared President Barack Obama to Hitler.

"We appreciate his contributions over the past years," the Walt Disney Co.-owned network said in a statement. "The success of 'Monday Night Football' has always been about the games, and that will continue."

ESPN had yanked the song, which contains the lyrics "Are you ready for some football?" from this past Monday's game between the Indianapolis Colts and Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The controversy began Oct. 3 when the entertainer appeared on the Fox News Channel. While criticizing Obama and House Speaker John Boehner for playing a round of golf together during the summer, Williams said it would be like "Hitler playing golf with Netanyahu," referring to Benjamin Netanyahu, the prime minister of Israel. Secret 'kill list' panel revealed

Senior government officials added US born Awlaki to target list No rules concerning how list operates

American militants like Anwar al-Awlaki are placed on a kill or capture list by a secretive panel of senior government officials, which then informs the president of its decisions, according to officials.

There is no public record of the operations or decisions of the panel, which is a subset of the White House's National Security Council, several current and former officials said. Neither is there any law establishing its existence or setting out the rules by which it is supposed to operate.

The panel was behind the decision to add Awlaki, a U.S.-born militant preacher with alleged al-Qaeda connections, to the target list. He was killed by a CIA drone strike in Yemen late last month.

Current and former officials said that to the best of their knowledge, Awlaki, who the White House said was a key figure in al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula, al-Qaeda's Yemen-based affiliate, had been the only American put on a government list targeting people for capture or death due to their alleged involvement with militants. REUTERS

Tough on terror?

The White House is portraying the killing of Awlaki as a demonstration of President Barack Obama's toughness toward militants who threaten the United States. But the process that led to Awlaki's killing has drawn fierce criticism from both the political left and right.

RiP MOURNING STEVE JOBS

World reacts to the passing of one of the most celebrated CEOs Fans post tributes online and at Apple stores across the globe Vision of the Apple co-founder can be seen on a daily basis Industry, world leaders comment

Outpourings of public grief and appreciation swept the globe on Thursday after the death of Apple co-founder Steve Jobs.

Jobs, who touched the daily lives of countless millions of people through the Macintosh computer, iPod, iPhone and iPad, died on Wednesday at age 56 after a long battle with pancreatic cancer. He stepped down as Apple chief executive in August.

In New York City, an impromptu memorial made from flowers, candles and a dozen green and red apples was erected outside a 24-hour Apple store on Manhattan's Fifth Avenue, with fans snapping photos of it on their iPhones.

"It was really sad news for us," said Daiichiro Tashiro, 25, visiting from Tokyo.

Tributes poured in both from ordinary people and from the pinnacles of the business and political worlds.

▶ Flowers, signs, apples and candles cropped up at makeshift memorials worldwide.

ANDREW BURTON/GETTY IMAGES

At an Apple store in Sydney, lawyer George Raptis, who was 5 years old when he first used a Macintosh computer, spoke for almost everyone who has come into contact with Apple. "He's changed the face of computing," he said. "There will only ever be one Steve Jobs."

A college dropout and the son of adoptive parents, Jobs changed the technology world in the late 1970s, when the Apple II became the first personal computer to gain a wide following. He did it again in 1984 with the Macintosh, which built on breakthrough technologies developed at Xerox Parc and elsewhere to create the personal computing experience as we know it today.

The rebel streak that was central to his persona got him tossed out of Apple in 1985, but he returned in 1997 and after a few years began the rollout of a troika of products that again upended the established order in major industries.

A diagnosis of a rare form of pancreatic cancer in 2004 initially cast only a mild shadow over Jobs and Apple, with the CEO asserting that the disease was treatable. But his health deteriorated rapidly over the past several years.

Jobs's death came just one day after Cook presented a new iPhone at the kind of gala event that became Jobs's trademark. Perhaps coincidentally, the new device got lukewarm reviews. REUTERS

Twitter memorial

NEW YORK. For the people's obituary of Steve Jobs, look on Twitter. The death of Apple's visionary leader prompted an outpouring that appeared to dwarf any news ever chronicled on the micro-blogging site.

Twitter users from around the world contributed eulogies of 140 characters or less, supplementing obituaries from nearly every major media outlet.

Whether it was a direct quotation or a misquote, thousands of people used Jobs' own words to philosophize on death. REUTERS

Apple had earlier success with the Apple II, but this was the first commercially successful computer with a graphical interface — luring even moms and dads who couldn't work a calculator.

"1984" COMMERCIAL

Directed by Ridley Scott ("Blade Runner"), this ad for the Macintosh featured a woman throwing a giant hammer at the head of a Big Brother, echoing George Orwell's classic dystopian novel. Aired during the Super Bowl, the ad was the most expensive of its time: The budget was reportedly $900,000.

PIXAR

Jobs bought the company, then known as Graphics Group, from Lucasfilm in 1986. He went on to executive-produce its first feature film, "Toy Story." Pixar's 12 films have grossed more than $3 billion at the box office.

DESIGN

Meticulous about form and function, Apple's products were always sleek and special.

Student design a hit on the Web

HONG KONG. A Hong Kong design student's poignant tribute to Apple founder Steve Jobs became an Internet hit Thursday with its minimalist, touching symbolism — and brought a job offer and a flood of commemorative merchandise using his design.

Jonathan Mak, 19, a student at Hong Kong's Polytechnic University School of Design, came up with the idea of incorporating Steve Jobs' silhouette into the bite of the Apple logo, symbolizing both Jobs' departure and lingering presence at the core of the company.

The logo was even used as the Twitter profile picture for Ashton Kutcher.

"It's been a crazy day for me," Mak told Reuters. "I'm both excited and terrified," added the teenager.

Mak said he had received a job offer because of the design.

Mak, who first created the logo after Jobs stepped down as Apple's head in August, said it hadn't made much of a splash until he reposted it Thursday.

"Originally, I was going to put a black modified logo against a white background," said the bespectacled Mak. "It just didn't feel somber enough. I just wanted it to be a very quiet commemoration. It's just this quiet realization that Apple is now missing a piece. It's just kind of implying his absence." REUTERS

The design spread like wildfire in cyberspace, drawing hundreds of thousands of posts; even commemorative caps and T-shirts peddled on eBay featuring his design.

PENNSYLVANIA
DISTRIBUTION NOTICE

■ 48 HOUR DISTRIBUTION BEGINS: Distribution hotlines open at precisely 8:30am this morning for Pennsylvania residents only. Trucks are being loaded with new Heat Surge high performance zone heaters and soon will be delivered to lucky Pennsylvanians.

Pennsylvanians set to get one of 6,049 new portable heaters being released by county

Residents who find their county listed below instantly qualify to get a new high performance zone heater that drastically slashes heat bills, but only the first 6,049 callers who beat the 48 hour order deadline are getting the new heaters that keep you warm for just pennies

Western Pennsylvania Counties

Allegheny	Centre	Fayette	Lawrence	Warren
Armstrong	Clarion	Franklin	McKean	Washington
Beaver	Clearfield	Fulton	Mercer	Westmoreland
Bedford	Clinton	Greene	Mifflin
Blair	Crawford	Huntingdon	Potter
Butler	Elk	Indiana	Somerset
Cambria	Erie	Jefferson	Venango

Eastern Pennsylvania Counties

Adams	Cumberland	Lehigh	Northumberland	Tioga
Berks	Dauphin	Luzerne	Perry	Union
Bradford	Delaware	Lycoming	Philadelphia	Wayne
Bucks	Juniata	Monroe	Pike	Wyoming
Carbon	Lackawanna	Montgomery	Schuylkill	York
Chester	Lancaster	Montour	Snyder
Columbia	Lebanon	Northampton	Susquehanna

It just got a lot warmer for lucky Pennsylvanians.

That's because U.S. based Heat Surge has just announced that they are releasing brand new high performance zone heaters that drastically slash heat bills to residents of the state of Pennsylvania.

Company spokesman, David Brokaw, says, "We only have 6,049 new heaters to hand over right now, so residents of the state of Pennsylvania who find their county listed in today's paper need to call the Pennsylvania Distribution Hotline immediately to get theirs."

This is all happening to announce the Heat Surge high performance zone heater with new Complete-Heat™ technology that can make heat bills so cheap you may never have to pay high heat bills again.

"Most people don't even realize that their furnace continuously runs and runs to heat areas of their home that they're not even using, costing them hundreds if not thousands of dollars every year. But the Heat Surge high performance zone heater heats both you and the air around you in just minutes to save you money on heat bills," said Brokaw.

Complete-Heat is a revolutionary breakthrough in home heat technology that incredibly uses only nine cents an hour of electricity to produce a warm, healthy heat that practically eliminates high heat bills.

Everyone is calling to get one because they cost just pennies an hour to operate and easily go from room-to-room so you can turn down your thermostat and never be cold again. They even come fully assembled so all you do is plug them in.

Pennsylvanians are being urged to immediately call the Toll Free distribution hotlines at 1-888-414-2415 because only the first 6,049 readers who beat the 48-hour deadline are getting the high performance heaters delivered directly to their door.

And here's the best part. Residents of the counties listed in today's paper are actually getting their Heat Surge high performance heater with new Complete-Heat technology encased in a real wood fireplace mantle that is built to last forever. The mantles are being hand-made right here in the U.S.A. where they are beautifully hand-rubbed, stained and varnished.

That's why for just three hundred ninety-eight dollars it's a real steal because these high performance zone heaters have sold for as much as six hundred forty dollars delivered. "It just makes good sense to get one now because with all of the money you save on your heat bills, these high performance zone heaters actually pay for themselves in just a matter of weeks. After that, they just keep on putting cash in your pocket month after month," Brokaw said.

"We're trying to make sure no one gets left out, but we only have 6,049 high performance heaters to hand over and when they're gone, they're gone so residents of the counties listed in today's paper need to call right now. Those who do will be the really smart ones because we're letting residents have two heaters per household until we run out just as long as they call before the deadline ends," confirms Brokaw.

"We're bracing ourselves for all the calls because with the amount of money these high performance zone heaters save people on heat bills everyone wants one," said Brokaw.

"So if the lines are busy keep trying. We promise to answer every call. Then we'll have a delivery truck out to you in no time at all so you can start saving money immediately," Brokaw said.

"That way you'll never have to be cold and miserable again," he said. ■

On the worldwide web:

■ MAKES HEAT BILLS CHEAP: The new Heat Surge high performance zone heater makes heat bills so cheap you may never have to pay high heat bills again. That's because it only uses 9¢ an hour of electricity on the standard setting to blast out an instant heat wave in any room.

■ SAFE: The Fireless Flame looks so real it fools everyone but there is no real fire. So you don't have to worry because the flame window is safe to the touch. It's where the kids will play and the cat and dog will sleep.

■ DELIVERED FULLY ASSEMBLED: Every Heat Surge Roll-n-Glow portable heater comes fully assembled by American workers and is delivered right to your door. All you do is roll it out of the box, plug it in and relax in front of the Fireless Flame.

■ EASILY ROLLS ANYWHERE: This is the new Roll-n-Glow high performance zone heater that easily rolls from room-to-room. Everyone loves them because they save you money and keep you warm without any flames, fumes, ashes or mess.

The Toll Free Distribution Hotlines open at 8:30am this morning for county residents only. U.S. based Heat Surge has authorized the release of brand new high performance portable heaters to residents who beat the 48 hour deadline. If lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered. If you miss the deadline you'll be turned away and forced to wait for future announcements in this publication or others, if any.

The only thing residents need to do is find their county on the list in today's paper and be one of the first 6,049 callers who beat the deadline to order the new Heat Surge high performance zone heater with new Complete-Heat technology for just three hundred ninety-eight dollars to drastically slash heat bills. There is a strict limit of two high performance portable heaters per household. To get yours call the Toll Free Distribution Hotline number for your county below.

15 YEARS OF FOX NEWS

Fox News Channel is 15 years old this week, having changed the face of TV news (though it still considers itself an underdog). Since 1996, Fox has caused plenty of controversy with its often caustic, center-right viewpoint. But to the chagrin of its liberal critics, its audience is twice that of the combined figure of CNN and MSNBC. Fox News has always divided opinion; and here, two commentators tell us what they think. ANTHONY FIGIOLA
VICE PRESIDENT OF EMPIRE GOVERNMENT STRATEGIES

The first lesson I was taught when entering the business world was "If they don't like you, it means you're doing something right." Over the last 15 years, Fox News has made some enemies, but their unique brand of journalism has created a strong legion of supporters.

Since the beginning, Fox News has been criticized by the left and accused of being stalwarts for the GOP. However, no matter what one thinks about the political ideology of Fox commentators, one thing is abundantly clear: America trusts them.

Quoted

"No matter what you think about the ideology of Fox News, one thing is clear: America trusts them."

Fox News fills a large void in reporting that's watched by more than 1.8 million viewers each night. In fact, the Fox News Channel is the fifth most-watched cable network in America with a nightly viewership larger than that of CNN and MSNBC combined.

Their popularity can be explained partly by the fact that they offer another side to news that we usually do not see enough of when relying on the traditional news media. Earlier this year, a Democratic organization, Public Policy Polling, polled Americans and found that Fox News ranked as the second most-trusted news network, just behind PBS. This might explain why commentators such as Bill O'Reilly, Sean Hannity and Greta Van Susteren have been rated No. 1 in their nightly time slots time and time again over their CNN and MSNBC counterparts.

Fox News covers many overlooked but important issues, serving as a leader in public discourse. Fox's journalists report on stories that other media outlets don't always pay attention to, but that often turn out to be major national stories. Fox's recent coverage of the shameful "Operation Fast & Furious" by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives is just one example of this.

For as long as there is competition and opinions in the news, many will criticize Fox and its contributors. Ten years of consistent, record-breaking ratings should signify the reach and impact that the network has on the playing field of news delivery.

Irrespective of what the critics on the left might shout from their soapboxes about Fox, the people have spoken, and Fox is here to stay.

FOX NEWS: A BLOT ON THE MEDIA LANDSCAPE

Opinion: Against FOX

LANCE STRATE
PROFESSOR OF COMMUNICATION AND MEDIA STUDIES, FORDHAM UNIVERSITY

The recent series of phone-hacking scandals facing Rupert Murdoch have conclusively demonstrated that HIS News Corporation is devoid of journalistic ethics. No doubt, the vast majority of broadcast journalists in the United States regard Murdoch's troubles as long overdue comeuppance for the permanent damage they inflicted on the American media landscape.

Quoted

"Fox keeps its political agenda hidden ... in a manner that blurs the distinction between journalism and propaganda."

For more than a century, journalists have adhered to an ideal of objectivity — admittedly, one they could never quite live up to. Still, they were intent on serving the public interest by providing objective, factual descriptions of events. Journalists proudly proclaimed that the criticisms and complaints they received from both left and right proved that they were maintaining the correct level of professional detachment and impartiality.

Fox News represents a radical break from this tradition, as it is profoundly partisan in its reporting.

Fox's political bias would not be so damaging if the organization would be honest and up front about the fact that it favors conservatism and the Republication Party. That would be perfectly legitimate.

The problem is that Fox keeps its political agenda hidden and obscured in a manner that blurs the distinction between journalism and overt propaganda. Instead, Fox News presents itself as part of the tradition of objective journalism, claiming that its deliberately biased newscasts somehow represent "fair and balanced" reporting.

This smokescreen has the effect of tainting all reporting with an air of political bias and pressuring other organizations to compensate for the imbalance in the media ecology. MSNBC has more recently eschewed the objective ideal to become the liberal counterpart to Fox.

And so, like a zombie plague, the infection spreads!

Cynicism abounds; and is it any wonder that when news becomes a joke, comedians become our most trusted journalists? How can we not look to Jon Stewart or Jay Leno as voices of reason and truth, when all that Fox brings us is an endless parade of programming that favors confrontation, conflict and angry exchanges?

Fox News is to journalism as professional wrestling is to sports. Murdoch is guilty of nothing less than strip-mining the media landscape, and it will be a long time healing from the damage that he has caused.

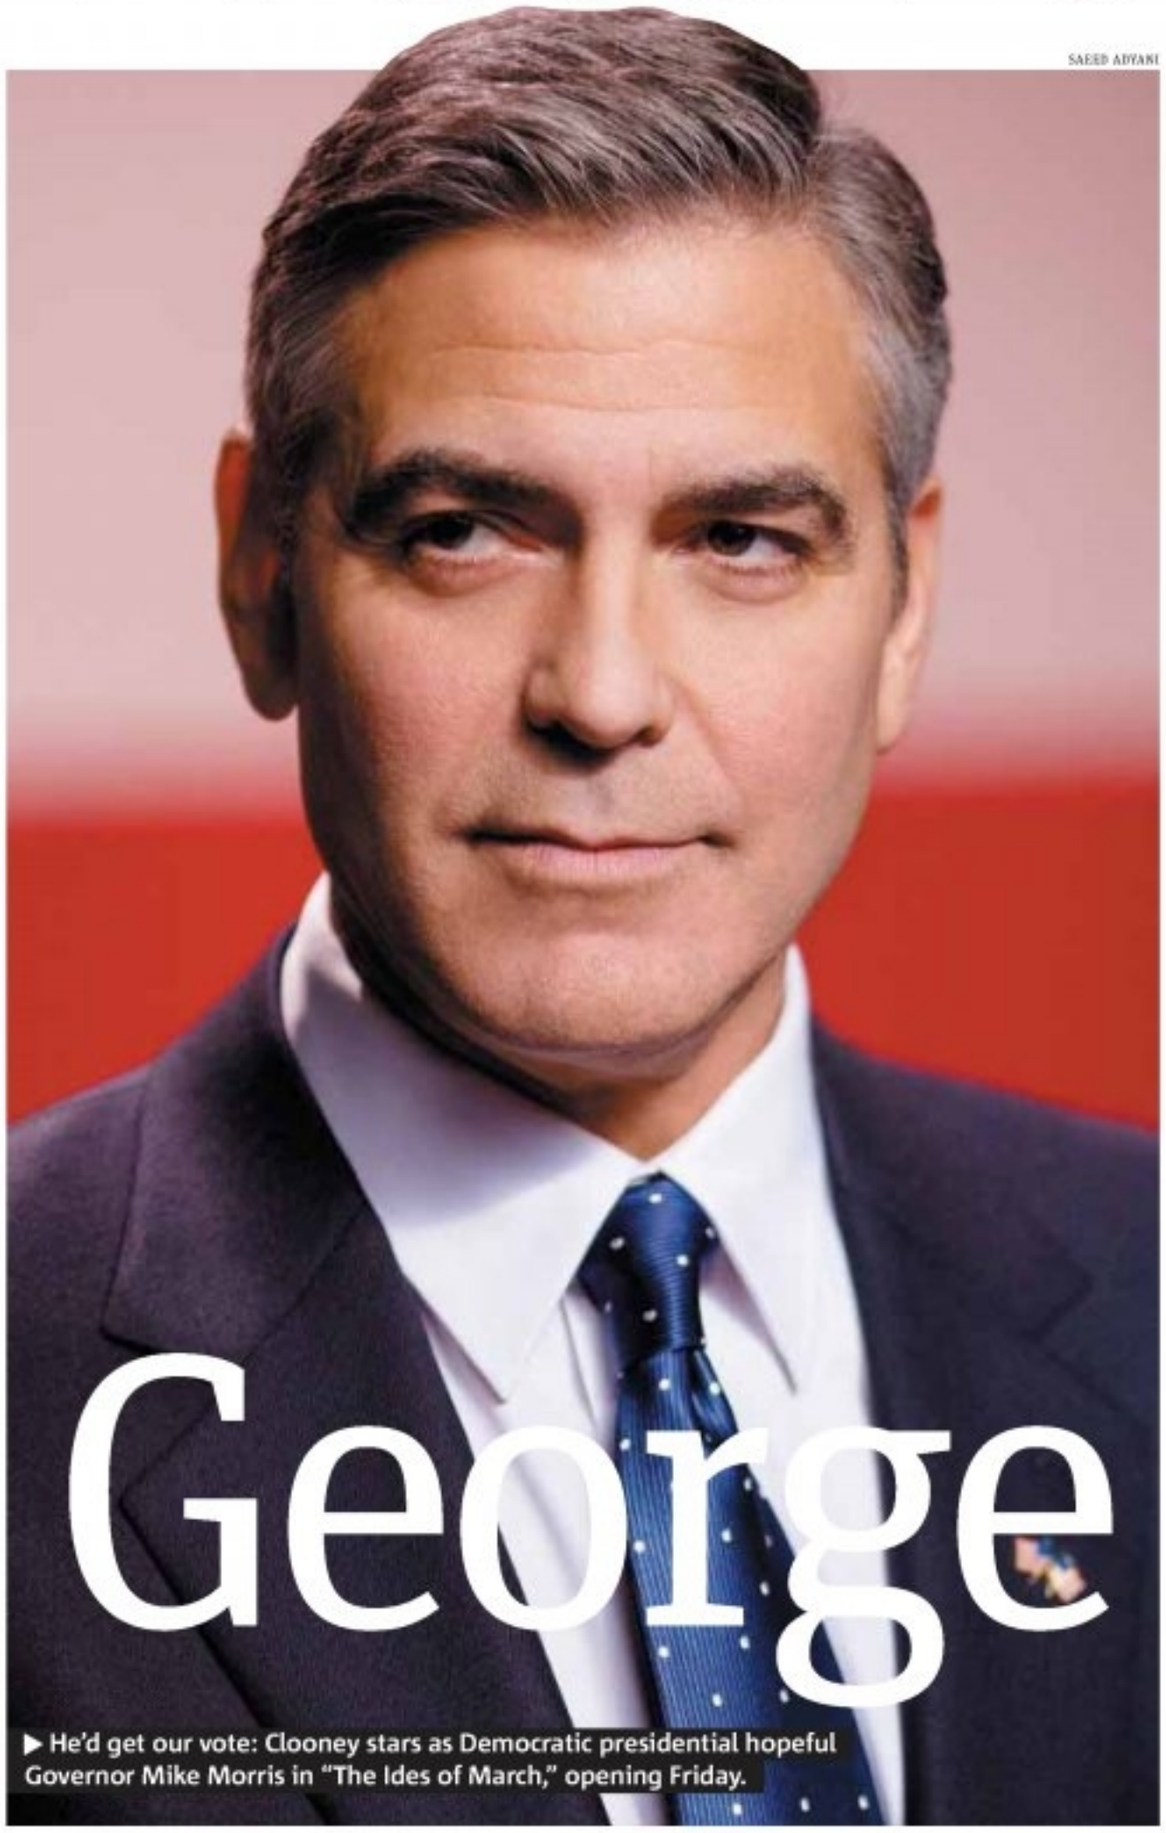
Clooney directs and stars in the political drama 'Ides of March'

'I thought of this as a film about moral choices, not about political strife,' he says

A vote for George

SAEED ADYANI



▶ He'd get our vote: Clooney stars as Democratic presidential hopeful Governor Mike Morris in "The Ides of March," opening Friday.

George Clooney's new film, "The Ides of March," takes what some might call a cynical look at the state of American politics, but that doesn't mean the director and star — ever the optimist — has given up on the system all together. "I think it's cyclical," he says. "I think we're at a period of time where it's probably not our best moment in politics, but if you look at the things Jefferson and Adams did to each other, the 1800 election was pretty rotten and evil. Things change and are cyclical, so I'm hopeful."

The film, based on Beau Willimon's play "Farragut North," follows an idealistic young campaign worker (Ryan Gosling) whose work for a charismatic candidate (Clooney) during the Democratic primary opens his eyes to the underbelly of politics. But as much as campaign signs and Beltway jargon make up the scenery of "Ides of March," Clooney wants to make clear that this is not a political film — at least not the way he sees it.

"I thought of this as a film about moral choices, not about political strife," he says. "I thought it was a fun moral tale, and once you put it in politics it sort of amps up the problems. There isn't a person you have met that hasn't been met with moral questions. Everyone makes moral choices to better themselves and hurt others along the way, whether the means justifies the ends." In fact, he maintains, the political setting is actually incredibly incidental — especially considering current events. "It could have been better in Wall Street," he offers.

With acclaimed films like "Confessions of a Dangerous Mind" and "Good Night and Good Luck" on his resume, Clooney is proving just as adept as a director as he is as an actor. So how different is the Clooney behind the camera to the one audiences know? Not very. "He's pretty much the same guy as George Clooney the actor," he jokes. "Basically the same height, same hair. Pretty much the same."

As for his on-camera work for the film, surely Clooney used some real-life models in portraying a top-ranking politico, right? Not so much, he insists. "No, there really weren't," Clooney says. "There's just so many ways to get in trouble with this answer. There were enough examples that we just picked little pieces of whatever we wanted." But he maintains that viewers going out looking for those real-world corollaries are wasting their time. Clooney offers a recent erroneous comparison: "People think it's about the John Edwards thing, but this was written before the John Edwards thing even broke."

Why 'Ides' is a reflection — not a criticism — of American politics

It's all part of the perception problem people have with movies — especially political movies — and their place in culture, Clooney explains. "Films don't lead the way. In general it takes about two years to get a film made," he says. "People think that films somehow are trying to lead society. Mostly we're reflecting the moods and thoughts that are going on in our country and around the world. If this film reflects some of the cynicism that's we've seen in recent times, that's probably good. It's not a bad thing to hold a mirror up and look at some of the things we're doing. It's not a bad thing to look at how we elect our officials."

METRO/NE

Mr. Clooney goes to Washington

Actor and director takes on a worthy play and makes it into a stylish film adaptation Why this political thriller doesn't get bogged down with dull details

'The Ides of March'
Director: George Clooney
Cast: Ryan Gosling, George Clooney, Philip Seymour Hoffman
Rating: R Grade: ●●●●○

Don't give all the credit to director and star George Clooney for such an engaging thriller. For one, this screen adaptation of the Broadway play "Farragut North" owes all it's quick-witted Sorkin-esque dialogue to the source material, down to almost every last beat. The play managed to successfully navigate the uninitiated through the jargon-riddled world of high-stakes elections without letting the whole thing devolve into a textbook-heavy clunker.

But Clooney did show his knack for casting by putting Ryan Gosling in the role of an ambitious and brilliant young political strategist Stephen Meyers, whose charm, like Gosling's, is effortlessly seductive. Clooney surrounds him with the best actor's actors around — Philip Seymour Hoffman plays Gosling's boss and No. 1 political strategist to Clooney's presidential hopeful, and Paul Giamatti as a tightly wound advisor to Clooney's opponent (as if he's played anything but tightly wound). The film's pacing is even; and while the character arcs may be familiar, there's nothing predictable here.

The only criticism may be that though Clooney's character is as morally ambiguous as everyone else's, his is the only ugly behavior that we never get to see onscreen. Is it Clooney's own vanity that prevented this? Looks like Danny Ocean has his faults.

Synopsis

Loosely based on one campaign worker's account of the 2004 presidential campaign of Howard Dean in the play "Farragut North," "The Ides of March" features a top political strategist working for Democratic presidential hopeful Governor Mike Morris during the primaries. When the opponent's guys approach Meyers with an offer to switch teams, the political wunderkind traps himself into an increasingly complex political scandal.

▶ Ryan Gosling uses that charming smile to his advantage as political advisor in "The Ides of March."

Dishing the dirt — and the punches

GETTY IMAGES

When Metro's Ned Ehrbar ran into Sugar Ray Leonard days later and asked about how he did, Leonard responded with a laugh and said, "Man, you were really bad."

The 'Real Steel' choreographer gives our reporter a one-on-one lesson in butt-kicking What he taught buff Hugh Jackman about boxing

For "Real Steel," boxing legend Sugar Ray Leonard was tasked with both choreographing big robot-on-robot boxing matches and training Hugh Jackman to play a convincing trainer and former boxer. But we at Metro thought he could use a real challenge: critiquing my boxing abilities. Leonard was a great sport about it. As for me? Well...

SUGAR RAY LEONARD: What's your best punch?
NED EHRBAR: Um ...
SRL: Show me your guard. [Ned stands up, puts up his fists.] You're a southpaw?
NE: No, I'm right-handed. [Ned switches position.]
SRL: Stand your regular way. OK, OK. Now jab. [Ned punches.] No, jab. [Ned punches again.] That's your right hand. You're supposed to jab with your left.

Teaching Hugh

Hugh Jackman, the star of "Real Steel," was obviously a better student than I turned out to be. So how did Mr. Wolverine fare?

"I worked with Hugh a number of times, just showing him how to execute certain punches — how to really punch with conviction. I told him it's all in your face, it's all in what you reveal. You punch with confidence, you punch with conviction. The things that I really taught to Hugh was looking the part, being a fighter, and he pulled it off."

SRL: When I say jab, I don't want you to do this [punches slowly]. If you did that to me, I'd see it coming a mile away. I had time to go to the bathroom before that punch lands. Speed is relaxing. Speed is like ... [Sugar Ray hits Ned in the gut three times]. That's the key. It's having the ability to relax and just let your hands go. I mean, naturally you're a big, strong guy ...
NE: Well, I'm big.
SRL: Right. [Laughs] Power comes from speed, you know what I mean? But you? You're OK. But don't overthink it. It's like, visualize sneaking up on someone. That's the movement. But then you have to keep working at it until it becomes natural. That's where the power comes in. I don't want to overwork you and tell you too much, but the key is balance and relaxing. You've got to loosen up. With me, I had the ability to lower my heart rate when I was in the ring. I could calm down enough so that I would be better than you. Because it's scarier than s— in that ring, I don't care who you are or how confident you are. But there is also a part of us that is able to kind of lower our heart rate because we're that confident. It may be delusional, but that delusion balances things out.

What did we really expect?

It's not surprising that 'Human Centipede 2 (Full Sequence)' is exactly the gross-out fest it promises to be Those who like gore won't be at all disappointed

©2011 SIX ENTERTAINMENT. AN IFC MIDNIGHT RELEASE

"Human Centipede 2 (Full Sequence)"
Director: Tom Six
Cast: Laurence Harvey
Rating: R
Grade: ●●●○○

What does a film need to be "good"? Captivating characters? An exciting plot full of action and suspense? Funny lines? "The Human Centipede II (Full Sequence)" has none of these things. But in its own strange way, it still gives its audience exactly what they came for.

More of a tribute than a sequel to its infamous predecessor, the film follows Martin (Laurence Harvey), a simpleton garage attendant obsessed with constructing his own centipede, bigger and better than the original, with 12 humans lined up rear-to-mouth-to-rear-to-mouth. The first two-thirds of the film are stale and repetitive, as Harvey stalks and maims a parade of shrill caricatures. But once the centipede construction begins, the film explodes in an orgy of violence and viscera — by Metro's count, semen and urine are the only bodily fluids not included — and Harvey's Buster Keaton stare flourishes into a delighted grin at his creation. "Human Centipede II" isn't a good film by any means, but no one can say it lacks imagination.

▶ Is carnage OK if it's made of "Real Steel"?

'Real Steel'
Director: Shawn Levy
Cast: Hugh Jackman, Anthony Mackie, Evangeline Lilly
Rating: PG-13
Grade: ●●●○○

For a family-friendly fantasy flick — even one about robots pummeling each other — "Real Steel" opens with some pretty questionable action. We meet Charlie (Hugh Jackman) pitting his robot boxer, Ambush, against a live bull at a state fair. The film's set in a not-too-distant future when an increasing thirst for violence makes human boxing obsolete in favor of the brutal robot kind. But there's something about watching an animal getting punched in the face that doesn't quite sit right. And strangely, the rest of the film is family-safe.

Robot-on-bovine violence aside, "Real Steel" works, minus a few bugs. The boxing itself is a marvel, with the clashing metal titans feeling incredibly real. As for the humans, Jackman plays Charlie with just enough charm that we root for him despite the fact that he's a lackluster businessman, father and human being.

About that father bit: Charlie takes on his estranged 11-year-old son (Dakota Goyo) for a summer on the road. Unfortunately, the film relies a bit too heavily on Goyo — possibly to distract from Jackman's character's less-than-heroic actions. And the less said about the boy's dancing, the better.

Brooklyn eats: More than just good pizza

From cream-of-the-crop eateries to the backstory of egg creams, "Edible Brooklyn: The Cookbook" surveys what might arguably be New York City's most epicurious borough. Editor Rachel Wharton hails from the area herself and has expertly curated more than 100 recipes contributed by chefs, shop owners and famous residents that will satisfy both a cheesemonger's refined palate and a cheesecake fiend's sweet tooth. There's even a savory pie recipe from noted urban forager Ava Chin that calls for primarily homegrown and accessible ingredients.

Other features include the history of the Brooklyn (Manhattan isn't the only borough with its own cocktail) and guides to perfect pickling. Skim the pages for delectable plates paired with photographic details of the urban landscape: rooftop honeycombs, farmer's markets, bicycles, brownstones and boardwalks. Plus, the book jacket doubles as a map to hot spots highlighted inside. So mix some milk, seltzer and chocolate syrup in an old-fashioned soda glass, pop in a pretzel and take your taste buds on a culinary journey.

Weekend recipe

Alexander's Omelet

From Jeff Gorlechen, Sixpoint Craft Ales. Makes 1 omelet.

Ingredients:

- 1 extra-large organic egg
- 1 tablespoon organic whole milk
- 1 tablespoon organic wheat germ
- Salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon high-quality extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 ripe avocado; 4 tablespoons mashed, the rest cubed for garnishing
- 1¼ inch slice Colby jack or milder cheddar cheese, preferably organic
- 4 tablespoons cooked and drained black beans (canned or fresh)

Directions:

1. In a small bowl, beat together the egg, milk and wheat germ, and season with salt and pepper to taste.

▶ Jeff Gorlechen recommends you pair the omelet with Sixpoint's Righteous Rye.

2. Heat the oil in a small, nonstick skillet, making sure that it covers the entire surface of the pan. Pour in the egg mixture, and cook over medium heat for about three minutes, or until the egg is cooked on the bottom and no longer runny on top. Do not flip the omelet. Reduce the heat slightly to keep the bottom of the omelet from burning.

3. Spread the mashed avocado across the center of the omelet and top the avocado with the cheese slice. Once the cheese begins to melt, reduce the heat to its lowest setting possible and fold the omelet in half. Leave the omelet in the pan for 30 seconds, and then slide it onto a plate. Keep it warm by covering it with another plate.

4. Heat the black beans in the microwave on medium-high for 30 seconds. Spoon the black beans over the omelet, and let stand for five minutes. Garnish with cubed avocado; season with more salt and pepper to taste.

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

▶ Grafton Village Cheese has been handcrafting specialty cheeses for more than a century. The beloved aged cheddars, as well as the new Tavern Select and Cave Aged varieties, are the perfect ending to a variety of autumn recipes.

GRAFTON VILLAGE CHEESE

It's time to cut the cheese — for dessert

- Add some sophistication to your final course by serving cheese
- Grafton Village Cheese's head honcho on why it beats a piece of pie

Just in case you needed a reason to eat sweets, October happens to be National Dessert Month. And whereas stalwarts such a pumpkin pie or chocolate cake always get your attention, in honor of the holiday it's time to direct your attention to an overlooked contender: cheese.

What's in a name?

Don't call Huebner a cheesemonger. "A cheesemonger is someone who sells cheese," he clarifies. "I'm more of a cheese artisan."

Cheese, please

Dane Huebner, the head cheesemaker of Vermont's Grafton Village Cheese, shares his tips on why and how to get out of your sweets comfort zone and add some sophistication to dessert:

- It's simply better for you, health-wise. "You're not going to eat as much cheese as you are a piece of cake," Huebner says simply. "It's less filling and more nutritious than your average sweets, which are usually full of fat and salt and sugar. There's protein and calcium in cheese. And with raw milk artisanal products, you are going to get cultures [that] help with digestion."
- Toward the end of the meal is the better placement for cheese. "If you eat cheese as an appetizer, it can dull your hunger," he says. "By having it at the end of the meal, you can take more time to appreciate it. And since you're not having to really prepare anything, you can relax with friends and family."
- You can please both your sweet and savory sides. "Fruit is a natural sweetness that plays well with cheese; same with nuts," says Huebner on a nice accompaniment. "You get both your sweet and savory tastes in."

How to serve

Complement your cheese dessert with the right carb. Huebner says: "A nice, crusty French loaf of bread is a better accompaniment than crackers. There are just a lot more dynamics to a nice piece of bread."

▶ SOFI's EP, "Locked and Loaded," drops Oct. 24.

SOFI shared stages with the Crue, Britney and Deadmau5, but she's 'Locked and Loaded' for her debut

Though SOFI stands for "Some Other Female Interest," Sofia Toufa is more than the first two words of her moniker might lead you to believe. The singer boasts a resume that reads more like an iPod on shuffle, working with artists like Motley Crue, Britney Spears and Avril Lavigne.

As a featured performer on the current sold out Deadmau5 dates, she sings on two of the heaviest songs in the set, "SOFI Needs a Ladder" and "One Trick Pony."

But this may be the last time Toufa plays the supporting role for a while. She drops her "Locked and Loaded" EP, a peek at her sultry club style, Oct. 24.

"I absolutely feel like I'm in the waiting room right now," she says.

Working with producers Skrillex, Noisia and Millions Like Us, the songs may be the poppiest offerings to ever be grouped in the dubstep genre. The first two songs, "Broken Souvenirs" and "Bring Out the Devil," may have a sinister feel, but the EP's final number, "Again Sometime" — with its huge, hopeful hook and sexy slinking bass — is a contender for the make-out song of 2012.

"It's basically a little trilogy," Toufa says of the EP's three songs, "a dramatic love story gone wrong."

Her wild side

SOFI has shared the stage with a wide range of acts. Who has the best parties?

"I've definitely had some good times with Avril. I toured with her for two years, and we just had a blast together and partied like crazy," she reveals. "But the craziest ones were with Motley Crue." How about Deadmau5? "We're all kind of chill now," she says, "but the energy is so high during the show ... that's party enough."

Time for some yArDs work

Merrill Garbus on struggling to get the tUnE right
And her odd choice of which letters she capitalizes

▶ Merrill Garbus uses a lot of effects pedals to help her achieve tUnE-yArDs' unique sound, but she plays a four-string ukulele most of the time.

Merrill Garbus never saw herself as a big star — never even wanted to be one. With her music popping up in cell phone commercials and performances on "Late Night with Jimmy Fallon," her fame under the band name tUnE-yArDs has grown even bigger with the release of her second album, "w h o k i l l." We asked Garbus about handling fame and her knack for strange typography.

This album has granted you even more media attention than your debut album. How do you feel about all the exposure? Is it surreal to hear your music used in ads on TV?
It has been a bit surreal, I suppose. The strangest was hearing an interview on NPR, which I listen to all the time, and to hear my music played on the radio. I think I'm generally embarrassed, but I'm trying to get better about that and just be proud of my accomplishments.

What do you want to do for a third album? Are you already writing? What kind of direction can we expect it to take?
I have written a couple of new songs ... not sure yet what it will be like. I'm trying to expose myself to a lot of different styles of music so I can keep growing and challenging myself as a musician. The rhythms will be crazy!

What is the hardest thing from the album to recreate live?
It was all pretty hard, I guess. ... As soon as we finished recording, it was time to try to rehearse them. I introduced a second looping pedal — and that created many more possibilities, but also more risk and more need for rehearsal.

Do you get annoyed when people get the lower and upper case letters mixed up in the spelling of the band name?
Nope. Not at all. They can capitalize at will.

Philadelphia Open Studio Tours go beyond a typical gallery show Experience art in an intimate setting

In neighborhoods throughout the city, artists will be opening their studios, workspaces and even homes to share their work as part of the 12th annual Philadelphia Open Studio Tours.

“This program provides an excellent snapshot of the broadness and diversity of the types of artwork that’s happening in the city,” says Open Studio coordinator Ann Koivunen.

In 1999, the Philadelphia Open Studio Tours began with 13 artists; the event has grown to include 350 participants. “One of the most important factors for the Open Studio Tours is that it’s entirely inclusive, and it’s incredibly diverse,” Koivunen says. “Any artist that wants to participate is welcome, and that leads to a wide variety of work to see.”

One of many unique exhibits this year includes a wooden boat-building studio. For the first time, the Philadelphia Wooden Boat Factory will be opening its doors to showcase its creations, which are inspired by the heritage of the sea.

“This tour is like choose your own adventure,” says Koivunen. “Don’t be intimidated — go in with an open mind and expect to have a lot of fun.”

Paris Fashion Week reviews

1 Miu Miu: Miuccia Prada's second collection was the polar opposite from the sweet show she put on for her main line in Milan. Her Miu Miu collection wasn't as conventionally pretty with models walking down the runway with severe, side-parted hair and challenging red eye makeup. The opening looks were frankly cold in blue and black skirts and tops that looked more autumn/winter than spring/summer. But the second half of the show was lighter and more upbeat with quirky, layered looks that came with A-line skirts, blouses and ruffled capelets in lace and printed cotton. The colors — a mix of red, blue, black, white, neon yellow and beige — breathed more spring-like life into the clothes, too.

2 Paco Rabanne: The press notes said that new creative director Manish Arora wanted to liberate women through their clothes rather than limit them. But the exaggerated lines of his futuristic dresses and skirts were so constricting around the knees that the models could barely walk in them. Arora has a flair for creating beautifully crafted, wearable works of art. But there was too much emphasis on the art and not enough on wearability in his debut collection for the house.

3 Givenchy: After last season's vampy sex-kitten looks, Riccardo Tisci's quieter, romantic clothes for spring looked like a palate-cleanser. He produced tailored jacket and short combos (a definite trend for spring) and trouser suits in the softest pink. They were wearable and practically sweet. Not that the designer completely let go of his dark, subversive side. A series of slinky, mini dresses with strategically placed sheer cutouts that revealed naked breasts underneath were classic Tisci. Overall, it wasn't exactly a collection that established new trends in the way we've become used to seeing from Givenchy. But he pushed a few popular ideas forward, such as the peplum, which he remixed by rendering them in asymmetrical shapes and exotic skins. KENYA HUNT

3 SPA TRENDS

Shirodhara

▶ What: A form of Ayurvedic treatment where warm herbal oil is drizzled onto the middle of the forehead (or third eye) to help you relax and achieve mental peace.

▶ Why you should indulge: "The treatment, which includes a head massage, relaxes face and head muscles and helps people suffering from lack of concentration, insomnia and headaches," says Nisha Saini, owner of Fine Living New York Ayurveda. She also says it's great for people who work on computers all day, which adds stress on the eyes.

Shellac manicure

▶ What: The miracle manicure: CND's Shellac uses UV3 technology for its gel-like polish, which requires zero dry time, doesn't damage your nail and lasts up to 14 days!

▶ Why you should indulge: Because you're sick of investing in a manicure only to walk out of the salon and discover smudged polish or a chip. "Shellac has dramatically invigorated the entire nail industry," says CND co-founder Jan Arnold of the formulation, which took more than five years for a scientist to create. "Nail polish technology hasn't changed in more than 50 years. Problems of chipping, peeling and dulling became an accepted reality of manis and pedis until now."

Facials with your boyfriend

▶ What: Turns out ladies aren't the only ones who need a spa day. According to the International Spa Association, men make up 31 percent of active spa-goers.

▶ Why they should indulge: "City skin ages faster! Men should get regular facials to maintain healthy skin, clearing away pollution and signs of daily stress," says Barry McCaffrey, director of Clarins' spa division.

On Fridays, Dorothy will post the best tweets she received during the week. You can always let her know what you think — good or bad — at @dorothyatmetro.

This week, readers really aren't interested in viewing Sunday's "Kim's Fairytale Wedding: A Kardashian Event," but do like to share their hypotheses for the Nancy Grace "Dancing with the Stars" farting controversy.

▶ @marquitanicole personally, I dont think her hubby is cute. He reminds me of Lurch frm Addams Family. Did she really marry b/c of love?

▶ @ACNism I rather watch infomercials.

▶ @Xanderall Even cleaning the lint from my drawers seems like a better option.

▶ @liljordankid if she's flashing her tits, I'm sure she farted too. Girl don't care!

▶ @v0xtheriot we all know the farting culprit was nancy grace's nipple trying to escape again

▶ @artshimko maybe Nancy Grace was nervous w/stage-fright from dancing in front of a big crowd, so yeah, she probably ripped one on TV.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Debbie Gibson goes on an '80s flashback

Debbie Gibson, 41, had a busy Wednesday night. The '80s icon was to host and perform at the re-opening of The Culture Club, the three-floored mega club featuring light-up dance floors (a la "Saturday Night Fever"), original tour memorabilia from Gibson (she's a partner in the club), and artwork from era classics such as "Footloose" and "The Breakfast Club."

The only problem? She was two hours late to her own party. And after much protesting (and waiting through her performance of only one song, her hit "Shake Your Love," which ages very well, FYI) we weren't granted an interview at the reopening (she apologized later, saying the music was too loud). However, once the '80s flashbacks wore off Gibson was kind enough to answer our questions about reinventing herself in the aughts.

You've made a new name for yourself by starring in such movies as "Mega Python vs. Gatoroid" and "Mega Shark Versus Giant Octopus." Why do those types of films?

I have always enjoyed acting through my experiences on Broadway and I'm always game for new adventures. These movies are just so over-the-top and kitchy that I couldn't resist the fun.

Out of all of your co-stars in those films — Mega Shark, Giant Octopus, Mega Python and Gatoroid — which scared you the most?

None of them compare to the mega sharks I've worked with in the music business. But in all seriousness, the live alligator was the scariest.

You played Katie Perry's mom in her "Last Friday Night" video. Do you feel like she is your daughter in a way, in that she's this generation's face of pop music?

I feel more like a big sister than mother, but yes, I do believe she is the generation's face of pop music.

—With additional reporting by Sally Morris

Ashton tries to slip the blame

If Ashton Kutcher is trying to spin the reason for his recent troubles with Demi Moore onto her shoulders by claiming she has relapsed, that's really not the way to do it, bub.

A "friend" tells Life & Style that their relationship had fallen apart weeks before Ashton's reported cheating incident. In fact, Ashton moved out because Moore had relapsed and he did so to "help" her. "Demi had been sober for a long time — decades — but recently it's gotten bad," the insider reveals to Life & Style. "Ashton loves her, but he can't stick around and watch her do this to herself."

Bad form, Team Ashton. If your wife is sick, you stick by her and help her. You don't move out and then boff a 23-year-old tart in a hot tub. You are not going to gain the sympathy vote with that angle.

Talking points

The latest on Aniston's womb

Jennifer Aniston knows there's plenty written about her and her possible desires to be a mom. Even a recent visit to the doctor with boyfriend Justin Theroux prompted speculation about family planning. But despite reports, Aniston isn't baby-mad. "It's not what you read. There's no desperation," she tells Elle magazine. "If it's meant to be, it's meant to be. I'm at peace with whatever the plan is."

Depp sorry for rape comment

Johnny Depp's comparison of having his photo taken to being raped didn't sit well with the Rape, Abuse and Incest National Network, according to Hollyscoop. Depp made the comment during an interview with Vanity Fair, and after the advocacy group made their concerns known, the actor was quick to apologize: "I am truly sorry for offending anyone in any way. I never meant to. It was a poor choice of words on my part in an effort to explain a feeling," Depp said in a statement. "I understand there is no comparison and I am very regretful. In an effort to correct my lack of judgment, please accept my heartfelt apology."

Barrymore is getting serious

Drew Barrymore "is yearning to get married and have kids," a source tells Us Weekly. So it's a good thing that her boyfriend, Will Kopelman, has been considering proposing — he's possibly popping the question "around the one-year mark of their dating" this winter, the source says. "He's madly in love and knows she's the one, but he just needs a bit more time." That takes care of marriage, but when it comes to babies, Barrymore may not be so patient: "I could see her getting pregnant before they get married," the source adds.

▶ Luis Moreno-Ocampo speaks to Metro's Heidi Patalano about "The Prosecutor," a documentary on his work with the ICC.

'Justice will arrive'

Chief prosecutor for the International Criminal Court is the subject of 'The Prosecutor,' premiering Sunday on The Documentary Channel

It was only eight years ago that the International Criminal Court came into existence. While the tribunal has been met with plenty of criticism, its chief prosecutor, Luis Moreno-Ocampo, tells Metro that it's a matter of time before justice arrives for the cases on his docket — including those against Libya's Muammar Gaddafi and Sudanese President Omar Al-Bashir. "The Prosecutor," a new documentary following Ocampo in his work at the ICC, shows the complex work this man has in hand. Yet the Argentine lawyer still maintains that he has the best job in the world.

What are you hoping viewers will take away from this film about your work?
People have to know that the ICC is an institution for the international community. People have to know they can submit information to us. The movie shows this institution working to bring justice for the worst crimes when no one else will bring justice.

Exiled leader of Libya, Muammar Gaddafi, has said that he will fight until he's dead. Do you expect to see him at the ICC?
We have a warrant there, so that's the important thing. In the Libya case, it sounds like everything was working the right way. Because as soon as the crime started, the media showed it and then the security counsel acted and requested our intervention. Without that, we cannot intervene.

But do you think you will bring him to justice?
I think for us, if our warrant helps to stop the crime that's a big achievement. If we can arrest them, we'll see. It takes time.

What do you say to critics who believe it's impossible to have an ICC?
This was a good question eight years ago when I started; but now, [the court] is a reality.

How do you remain an optimist despite how difficult each step of the judicial process can be?
Because it's a fascinating mission that they gave to me. It's the best job in the world.

HEIDI PATALANO
heidi.patalano@metro.us

The purpose of 'The Prosecutor'

"The New York Times used the word 'holocaust' to describe what happened in the second World War in 1959. Fifteen years later, they used holocaust without a capital letter. The understanding "Holocaust" [with a capital H] took 10 years more. What happened in the middle? Two movies – "The Diary of Anne Frank" and "The Nuremberg Trials." The media helps to understand what happens today, but movies have a long-term impact."

▶ Watch "The Prosecutor" on Sunday at 8 p.m. on The Documentary Channel.

'Kim's Fairytale Wedding: A Kardashian Event'

REALITY. It's the wedding of the century for everyone who has been trying to keep up with Kim and co. for the last six seasons. For everyone else, the fanfare over this union may very well be a sign of the apocalypse. Sunday, 8 p.m., E!

Horoscope

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Because you'll know how to use your imagination to skirt obstructions that could impede your progress, nothing of importance will get in your way.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Associates will find you to be an exhilarating ally. Without even realizing it, you're likely to set the right example that encourages others to utilize their assets to the fullest as well.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Speak up, because your approach to solving another's complicated business conundrum is likely to be extremely clever and effective. You might even get a reward for your suggestion.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Channel any artistic urges you get into the beautification of your home or personal attire. Neither you nor anybody else will easily tire of your choices, regardless of how extreme they may be.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Not to worry if there is a lot of conversational buzz going on behind your back, because it is likely to all be quite complimentary. In fact, several people will be copying what you do.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Check your resources to see where you've been a bit wasteful, so that you can use this overflow down the line for getting a few things you truly need.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Sincerity is the ingredient that closes deals. If you're representing something that you truly believe in, you shouldn't have any trouble making some good sales.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. If it can better your position, there is no reason why you shouldn't make a few concessions, even if you have to give up more than you thought. It's the end results that count.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Let someone who is willing to work on your behalf get involved and pitch in wherever and whenever she or he can, especially if it's within this person's means to do what you can't.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. You can disprove the axiom that says, "Nice guys finish last." Demonstrate to others how you can achieve big objectives without stepping on anybody else's toes.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Although you may not have a clue how you can accomplish what must get done, chances are you will have access to those who can fill in all the missing pieces for you. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Smart money on college 'dogs

This is a great weekend to take advantage of one of our favorite college football betting trends: Going against a team coming off an emotional game or a big win.

The benefits of this trend are two-fold:

First, college teams and young players in general often have a letdown. And second, the point spread is often inflated. Everyone saw Team X get that huge win last week, and now they're running to the window to bet on them.

That creates value.

What's that mean this weekend?

Boston College is a great pick getting 21 points at Clemson, thanks to the Tigers' three high-profile wins in a row.

Likewise, Vanderbilt should cover 28.5 against an Alabama team that just beat Florida. ADAM LEVITAN

Lack of leadership killing the Dream

Eagles without visual leader in defensive huddle ◗ Young players, free agents still trying to establish roles ◗ Can someone call a team meeting?

When Brian Dawkins was leading the Eagles' defense, a 1-3 start would have been unacceptable.

Dawkins would morph into Wolverine and rip into teammates when he saw a lack of effort. On this so-called Dream Team, there just doesn't seem to be any fiery leaders.

"I don't know if we're missing it because we do have it some, and maybe have been getting it more," said newcomer Cullen Jenkins, who won a Super Bowl last season in Green Bay. "It's tough because there are so many new people, so many free agents and stuff, you don't know how guys are going to react to certain things in certain situations, so it gets difficult."

Jenkins said that it's been a crash course, trying to cram five months into a few weeks. Some of the newer pieces are tentative to raise their voices.

"It's a tough adjustment, as far as when do you speak up and say something and all those things," Jenkins said. "It's just something that time will make everything better."

Making matters worse, players are still learning each other's personalities — along with coordinator Juan Castillo's scheme.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Jenkins won a Super Bowl last season and could be a de facto leader for the Eagles.

"We're still learning this thing, it's only the eighth week in, but we're getting a lot better each day we step on the field," Darryl Tapp said. "It's going to be a consistent thing, probably won't get it down pat until playoff time."

Tapp added that this defense leads by committee, with each group (defensive line, linebackers, secondary) having its own voice.

"We're all leading by committee, there's no one visual figure that you can put the whole defense on," Tapp said.

But, after blowing three straight fourth-quarter leads, is it time for a visual leader to emerge? Or should someone sit everyone down for a team meeting?

"I don't think that's a necessity, but it could definitely be beneficial to get to know what everybody is thinking or has going on, or feels what our problems are," Jenkins said.

The cold, hard football facts

A look at this weekend's NFL action, through the eyes of the football stat experts at Coldhardfootballfacts.com.

The mother of all stats

Passer rating differential is the "mother stat" of football analysis, because 60 percent of all NFL champions since 1940 finished No. 1 or No. 2 in the indicator. The 2009 Saints and 2010 Packers were each tops:

- It merely takes a team's passer rating and subtracts its defensive passer rating (the total performance of other QBs against its defense).
- The top five in the NFL through Week 4:
  1. Green Bay +32.2
  2. Tennessee +31.5
  3. N.Y. Giants +28.8
  4. Detroit +26.5
  5. Houston +24.2
- The bottom five:
  28. Indianapolis -20.2
  29. Philadelphia -21.1
  30. Miami -28.6
  31. Denver 29.8
  32. Jacksonville -33.5

Ffchamps.com's 'Start and Sit'

- Start him
  Atlanta Falcons WR Roddy White is on pace for another 100-reception, 1,000-yard season, and he'll improve his stats even more in Week 5 when the Falcons play the Packers on Sunday night. Surprisingly, Green Bay has given up the fifth-most points to opposing WRs this season.
- Sit him
  Tennessee WR Nate Washington struggled as the Titans' No. 1 receiver last weekend, with just two catches for 62 yards at Cleveland. Fantasy owners shouldn't be willing to gamble that he will fare better this weekend against a stingy Pittsburgh defensive unit.

Manning hopes for 2011 return

Peyton Manning got the OK from doctors to be on the sideline for the Colts' game Sunday. And he said on Thursday he's not ruling out a return this season. "I think you have to have hope until the doctors rule you out," he said.

WEEKEND FOOTBALL BETTING GUIDE

CHIEFS 1-3 at COLTS 0-4

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Colts -2.5 (O/U 39)
The Scoop: The Colts are favored, but they're just 2-4 ATS their last six times out. That spells trouble.
Pick: Chiefs

CARDINALS 1-3 at VIKINGS 0-4

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Vikings -3 (O/U 45.5)
The Scoop: Here's another instance where a road underdog is a good bet. Minny rarely covers at home.
Pick: Cardinals

EAGLES 1-3 at BILLS 3-1

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Eagles -3 (O/U 49.5)
The Scoop: Philly is just 1-4 ATS its last five times out. But they're 7-3 SU in their last 10 on the road.
Pick: Eagles

RAIDERS 2-2 at TEXANS 3-1

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Texans -6 (O/U 51)
The Scoop: Pardon us for not being too impressed with the Raiders last week. They're in trouble.
Pick: Texans

SAINTS 3-1 at PANTHERS 1-3

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Saints -6.5 (O/U 51)
The Scoop: Cam Newton won't tear it up this week.
Pick: Saints

BENGALS 2-2 at JAGUARS 1-3

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Jaguars -2 (O/U 36.5)
The Scoop: Jags aren't great, but they've won last seven home games in this series and are 5-1-1 ATS.
Pick: Jaguars

SEAHAWKS 1-3 at GIANTS 3-1

SUNDAY, 1 P.M.

Line: Giants -10 (O/U 43.5)
The Scoop: Forget the trends, the 'Hawks are really bad. Bet the over and expect a old-school beat down.
Pick: Giants

BUCS 3-1 at 49ERS 3-1

SUNDAY, 4:05 P.M.

Line: 49ers -3 (O/U 42)
The Scoop: Bucs are 11-0 ATS in their last 11 road games vs. a team with a winning home record.
Pick: Buccaneers

JETS 2-2 at PATRIOTS 3-1

SUNDAY, 4:15 P.M.

Line: Patriots -9 (O/U 48.5)
The Scoop: Road team is 18-7-1 ATS in last 26 meetings. Jets have won four of last six meetings overall.
Pick: Jets

CHARGERS 3-1 at BRONCOS 1-3

SUNDAY, 4:15 P.M.

Line: Chargers -4 (O/U 45.5)
The Scoop: SD is 0-5-1 ATS in last six road games as 3.5- to 10-point faves.
Pick: Broncos

Titans at Steelers (1 p.m. Sunday)

LINE: Steelers -3.5 (O/U 39.5)

KEY INJURIES: QB Ben Roethlisberger (foot) probable. RB Rashard Mendenhall (hamstring) questionable. James Harrison (face) out. WR Kenny Britt (knee) out.

THE SCOOP: This is basically a pick 'em game with the defending AFC champion Steelers getting the automatic three points for that "Terrible Towel" atmosphere and home-field advantage. But Pittsburgh is just too banged up to rely on at this point. Even if Big Ben plays, he won't be 100 percent, and Tennessee has one of the stingiest defenses in the NFL. Plus, the stats back the Titans, anyway, with the underdog going 7-1 ATS in the last eight head-to-head meetings in this series.

PICK: Titans

PACKERS 4-0 at FALCONS 2-2

SUNDAY, 8:20 P.M.

Line: Packers -6 (O/U 53)
The Scoop: Fifty-three points is a ton to score, even for the high-octane Packers. Take Aaron Rodgers and Co., with confidence to cover the six-point spread, but make sure to bet the under for the total. Green Bay went 1-1 at the Georgia Dome last season. They'll do just fine this time around.
Pick: Packers

BEARS 2-2 at LIONS 4-0

MONDAY, 8:30 P.M.

Line: Lions -5 (O/U 47.5)
The Scoop: We like the (suddenly amazing) Lions to win straight up, but not ATS. Aside from Week 2 against Kansas City, the Cardiac Cats haven't won by more than seven — and have needed comebacks in all three. Keep in mind, Chicago is 5-1 ATS in last six Monday nighters.
Pick: Bears

BOISE ST 4-0 at FRESNO ST 2-3

FRIDAY, 9 P.M.

Line: Boise -21 (O/U 58)
The Scoop: Boise has had three big spreads this year. They've only covered once.
Pick: Fresno

OKLAHOMA 4-0 at TEXAS 4-0

SATURDAY, NOON

Line: OU -10.5
The Scoop: We have very little doubt the Sooners will win SU. ATS? It's a rivalry game ... it'll be close.
Pick: Texas

UCONN 2-3 at W. VIRGINA 4-1

SATURDAY, NOON

Line: WVU -20
The Scoop: The Huskies have looked bad both SU and ATS all season long. WVU — just a bit better.
Pick: West Virginia

LOUISVILLE 2-2 at UNC 4-1

SATURDAY, NOON

Line: UNC -14
The Scoop: The Tar Heels have alternated W's and L's ATS all year. They're due for an L.
Pick: Louisville

BC 1-4 at CLEMSON 5-0

SATURDAY, 3 P.M.

Line: Clemson -21
The Scoop: We covered this one already. The Eagles will cover.
Pick: Boston College

FLORIDA 4-1 at LSU 5-0

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

Line: LSU -14
LSU is 1-4-1 ATS in their last six games against Florida. This game will be close.
Pick: Florida

KANSAS 2-2 at OKLA. ST 4-0

SATURDAY, 3:30 P.M.

Line: OSU -32
Kansas can score points; they just have no defense. But 32 is way too high.
Pick: Kansas

MICHIGAN 5-0 at N'WESTERN 2-2

SATURDAY, 7 P.M.

Line: Michigan -7.5
Denard Robinson will run all over Northwestern. The Wildcats are 1-5 ATS in their last six at home.
Pick: Michigan

AUBURN 4-1 at ARKANSAS 4-1

SATURDAY, 7 P.M.

Line: Arkansas -10
Auburn doesn't get enough credit now that Cam Newton is gone. They might lose, but it'll be close.
Pick: Auburn

OHIO ST 3-2 at NEBRASKA 4-1

SATURDAY, 8 P.M.

Line: Nebraska -11.5
The spread would be much bigger if it weren't for OSU's name.
Pick: Nebraska

Castillo to fans: 'We are going to turn this around'

Eagles DC preaches patience with leaky unit ◗ Players still adjusting to new scheme, getting in shape ◗ Promises to fix it in time for playoffs

Have no fear, Juan Castillo has the answers.

Hopefully, he'll share them soon.

The first-year defensive coordinator sat at the podium Thursday with a confident smile. Yes, his defense has blown three straight fourth-quarter leads. Sure, his unit has made tackling look like a chore.

But Castillo insists that his defense is championship-caliber. At least, that was his message.

"Here's what I know about the city of Philadelphia, the fans, our owner: We're going to win, and we're going to turn this around," Castillo said. "We have the answers, and then when we win, I know they'll understand."

Nice scheme

EAGLES

We hate to rely on stats, but numbers don't lie. The Eagles' defense has been bad through four games.

- Eagles are allowing 101 points (25.2 per game) — tied for ninth-worst.
- Opposing running backs are averaging 139.5 yards per game — third-worst.
- That revamped secondary? Non-existent, with the Birds giving up 10 passing TDs — tied for the worst.

Castillo partially blamed the lockout for a slow start. It's been an ongoing struggle to get players to adjust to his scheme, while keeping conditioning up so they don't tire late in games.

"The hard thing is that there are some things schematically that you haven't been able to work on," Castillo said. "We're getting ourselves into shape, and every week we're getting better."

Darryl Tapp admitted that players still don't have Castillo's scheme "down pat." Once they get, it's just a matter of execution.

"I doubt any team is really 100 percent in their scheme at this point in time, with the lack of OTAs and things of that nature," Tapp said. "There are a lot of teams that are a lot better off because they was in the same scheme they were last year, but with us having a new scheme implemented, it made it a lot harder for us."

Castillo re-iterated that the Eagles have been here before and it's way too early to write them off.

"Remember, we are in week four," he said. "The team that wins the Super Bowl is the hottest come December and January."

BEATING THE BYE WEEKS

There is a lot of luck in fantasy football. Thankfully, the bloated bye weeks are here to separate the men from the boys.

With a different six teams taking the week off, the talent pool is sapped. Owners that built deep benches will be rewarded, while those that haven't been grinding will be punished.

If you've been slacking, it's not too late to get your bench in shape. In fact, there are even some guys out there that can help you right now — also known as "plug-n-plays":

Sir Isaac Redman

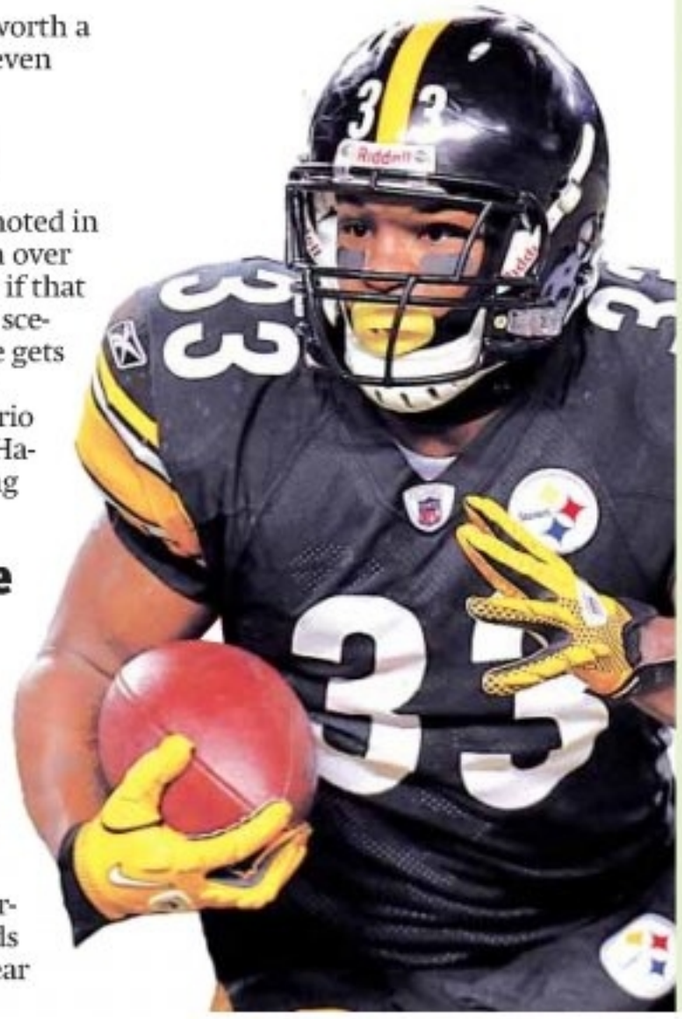
As NFL teams enter the heart of the season, it often becomes a battle of attrition. Rashard Mendenhall (hamstring) and Mewelde Moore are both likely to miss Sunday's game against the Titans, leaving annual camp darling Isaac Redman as a potential workhorse. Any back looking at 20-25 touches is worth a play during the bye weeks, even third-stringers.

Cruz past Mario?

Mario Manningham was demoted in the middle of last week's win over the Cardinals. No one knows if that will stick, but the worst-case scenario for Victor Cruz is that he gets a bump in snaps as the No. 3 wideout. The best-case scenario is Cruz lines up across from Hakeem Nicks full-time, pushing Manningham into the slot.

Down goes Andre

The Texans are a run-first team now behind their dominating offensive line, but someone has to catch the ball. With Andre Johnson (hamstring) out at least two weeks, the talented yet inconsistent Jacoby Jones is getting his chance. Jones averaged 5.0 catches for 92.5 yards in the final two weeks last year when Johnson sat out.



NFL stock watch

Need to turn your season around? Sell high on these guys:

1. Frank Gore, RB, SF — Don't buy into Gore's breakout. The Eagles' run defense is anemic, Gore is a shell of himself and Kendall Hunter is coming on strong.

2. LeGarrette Blount, RB, TB — Blount ran over the Colts on Monday night, but falls out of the game plan too often.

3. Ryan Fitzpatrick, QB, BUF — Fitzpatrick is an annual fast starter whose poor arm strength gets eaten up by Buffalo's weather late in the year.

NFL news

Still kicking

Cedric Benson isn't going down without a fight. His lawyers continue to fight a suspension, dragging out the appeal. All we can do is continue to stash Bernard Scott as a one- or two-game suspension remains likely.

Babin rips league, need blueprint for determining fines

Jason Babin was fined $15,000 for a hit in the neck area on San Francisco quarterback Alex Smith.

He posted a tweet saying that if the NFL wanted to protect quarterbacks so much, they should "get better linemen."

Later, he told reporters that he was just being sarcastic. Still, he wouldn't back down totally from his comment, adding that there needed to be a better system for determining how fines are doled out.

"Oh, I'll call that one 15 [thousand dollars], I'll call that 40," Babin said. "There's no blueprint, there's no grid system to say, 'OK, this is how it works, let's plug it in.'"

Tweet tweet

Here is Babin's original tweet in response to his $15,000 fine:

▶ Attn: Guy at the NFL that decides on who and how much players get fined Stop being a puppet, if you want to protect QB's, get better linemen.

Babin, who leads the league with seven sacks this season, said he plans to appeal the fine.

"I got a little upset, because if you were to take guys who played five years ago, 10 years ago and say, 'Do you think these are fineable offenses?' They'd be like, 'No, they should get bonuses,'" said Babin.

Babin, who signed a $28 million deal with the Eagles in the offseason, also feels like he gets singled out for his aggressive style and was fined several times last season.

"I don't think they like the way I play at all," Babin said. "They get nervous every time. They know I'm throwin', and somebody [could] get hurt. That's what got me paid, that's what got me to where I am today."

Just another playoff game for Halladay

Phils hand ball to staff ace in decisive Game 5 Right-hander nearly flawless in his NLDS career Not getting caught up in what game means

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Halladay is 2-0 with a 1.59 ERA for his NLDS career, including a no-hitter.

The Phillies have four aces, but the team's true No. 1 goes by 34.

Roy Halladay will take the mound in a do-or-die Game 5 Friday in the NLDS against the wild-card St. Louis Cardinals.

"Roy Halladay is the best pitcher in baseball," Yankees GM Brian Cashman said during spring training. "I think if you asked most people in baseball who they would want on the mound for a big game, it would be him."

Well, 'Doc' gets the call in the biggest game of the season — and possibly his career. For the Phillies, the pros are obvious.

After a shaky start against the Cardinals in Game 1, in which he gave up a three-run homer to Lance Berkman, Halladay didn't yield anything. The uber-focused hurler set down the last 21 batters he faced leading the Phillies to a victory. The only other pitcher to accomplish that feat in the playoffs is the Yankees' Don Larson, who pitched a perfect game in the 1956 World Series.

"The things that he [Halladay] does are amazing," Shane Victorino said. "He's just on another level."

No pitcher has been better than Halladay in a division series, either. He has given up hits in just two of 17 innings in his NLDS career — and has been perfect in 14 of those 17 innings.

"The reason he can do that is because he's Roy Halladay," Phils reliever Michael Stutes said.

So it would be hard to imagine that Halladay, who pitches as if ice water runs through his veins, would feel any pressure.

"It's another postseason game, really," Halladay said Thursday. "I don't think you can get too caught up in what game it is and what it means."

Manuel: Lineup changes due?

Phillies skipper Charlie Manuel usually sticks with his players through thick and thin, from slump to stardom.

Still, he didn't rule out the possibility of switching his lineup for Game 5 when asked Thursday.

"I don't know if I'll make any changes or not. I'll think about it. I've been thinking about it [Wednesday] night, and I'll think about it [Thursday night]." METRO

"I've seen squirrels a lot in different ballparks besides St. Louis, of course; but at the same time, the squirrel over there was a little bit different."

Charlie Manuel, when asked if there was some kind of "squirrel curse."

Flyers-Bruins

FLYERS 2, BRUINS 1

Three things we saw at the rink

▶ Up next: Saturday, at NJ Devils, 7 p.m. (CSN)

1 Worth every penny. Ilya Bryzgalov, the $51 million man made a triumphant debut for the Flyers Thursday. Bryzgalov, the league's highest-paid goaltender, denied the Bruins at nearly every turn. He made 22 saves, including some clutch denials in the third period when the Bruins, trailing 2-1, strung together a pair of power plays. The goaltender turnstile may finally be a thing of the past.

2 Welcome back, Prongs. Chris Pronger's absence from the semifinal series against the Bruins in May was profoundly felt, but so was his presence Thursday night. Pronger, who turns 37 Monday, played a team-high 24 minutes, 34 seconds and anchored a defense that limited the Bruins to 23 shots on goal. Pronger even contributed an assist on Claude Giroux's game-tying goal in the first period.

3 Just like old times. Three years away from the NHL, Jaromir Jagr looked like his old, future Hall-of-Fame self vs. the Bruins, assisting on Giroux's goal and drawing a key penalty against Johnny Boychuk late to help seal the victory.

JEFF GOLDBERG

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Giroux scored the Flyers' first goal, with an assist from newcomer Jaromir Jagr, in the background here.

117
Goals the Flyers lost when Jeff Carter, Mike Richards, Ville Leino, Kris Versteeg, Nikolay Zherdev, Darroll Powe, Blair Betts and Dan Carcillo left either via trade or free agency. The eight forwards who replaced them combined for 36 last season.

Bruins celebrate 2011 Cup by raising the roof

New banner goes up high in rafters at the Garden • Plenty of nostalgia during ceremony • Former Flyer Recchi honored with special symbol

The spiffy new black-and-gold banner was the center of everyone's attention Thursday night at the Garden. But it was that ratty old black-and-gold jacket that stole the show.

The Boston Bruins' summer of Stanley Cup love came to a triumphant conclusion with the raising of the 2011 championship banner to the rafters.

And the Bruins spared no expense in the nostalgia category, bringing back the heroes of the Bobby Orr-led 1972 team — the last to win the Cup before last season — to present the banner.

But it was the new generation of hockey hero — Zdeno Chara, Tim Thomas, Nathan Horton, Brad Marchand — that the delirious crowd came to see, saving the biggest ovation for Thomas, whose Conn Smythe Trophy-winning performance carried the Bruins in three Game 7 victories, including the Finals against Vancouver.

And then there was that jacket.

The stylistically challenged symbol of Bruins victory, presented to a team-voted MVP after each postseason victory, was presented one more time to one Bruin who did not play in Thursday's game: former Flyer Mark Recchi.

JEFF GOLDBERG/METRO
